The Charleston News.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1869.

To Our Friends in the Country-In-

We desire, if possible, to make THE NEWS, which is already without exception the cheapest newspaper in the South, a regular risitor in every well regulated household in this and the adjoining States. As an inducement to the plant ers to subscribe to The News before the expira tion of the present year, we have arranged with Messys, Walker, Evans & Coaswell, the publishers of the RUBAL CAROLINIAN, to supply that new and superb agricultural magazine, together with THE NEWS, to all new subscribers, at the following very low rates:

THE DAILY NEWS and the RURAL CAROLINIAN, one year, for six dollars and fifty cents. THE TRI-WEEKLY NEWS and the RURAL CARO-

LINIAN, one year, for four dollars. Subscriptions to the two publications may be sent either to the proprietors of THE NEWS, or to the proprietors of the Rural Carolinian. But persons desiring to avail themselves of this offer must do so before the Arst of January next, as that period.

-Wise men are puzzling themselves to acco for the fresh water which comes up through an fron tube, sunk fifteen feet through the constant twenty feet from high water and not more than three feet above it. The water in this tube rises and falls regularly with the tide, yet more than 100 barrels have been pumped from it at one time, without finding the slightest trace of saline matter. It is of such fine quality that vessels supply themselves for a sea voyage from this well, osed of representatives of the different politica parties, complete disunion is said to have exist-id. General Prim had to use every effort to prevent a rupture both on the church and king quetions. The opposition is now stated to be divided, but the final selection of the Duke of Genoa for the throne is regarded as probable. In the pro-liminary meetings of parties among the Progress ists and Democrats, he received 102 votes to two for the Duke of Montpensier. Among the Union ists all but two deputies opposed him, while among the monarchists in the Cortes it is said 166 out of 209 will support his claim.

The Robber of the Period.

An order for three thousand dollars, in faor of Mr. D. T. Corbin, approved by Mayor Pillsbury, was presented for payment at the City Treasury yesterday. How did-it get there?

At the meeting of the City Council held on Thursday last, Alderman Cunningham offered a resolution that Mr. Corbin be paid three thousand dollars for his professional services. The Mayor put the question, but there was so much confusion in the civic temple that only five or six Aldermen voted. There were, however, four votes against, and two in favor of Alderman Cunningham's resolution. The yeas and nays were called for, and then began the exhibition of Billingsgate rhetoric which ended in one Alder man firing thrice at another Alderman with a Colt's army revolver. The vote by yeas and nays was not taken, the resolution was not adopted; yet Mayor Pillsbury, when asked for information, refused to say what was its exact position.

We do not discuss now whether the ser vices of Mr. Corbin were worth three thousand dollars, or whether the city should pay the fees for services rendered to the Mayor and Aldermen as private citizens. This has nothing to do with the present question. which is-whether Mayor Pillsbury has the right to empty the City Treasury, when and how it suits him? A vote of Council would have relieved Mayor Pillsbury of all responsibility. This he did not wait for. claimant hungered for the loaves and fishes and the gentle Mayor could not, or would

We expect to be robbed, and shall not be disappointed. But we did not look for so flagrant a violation of all rules of reason, right and deceney as is shown in this last freak of our eminently honorable Mayor. Well, what next?

Industrial Partnerships.

The Earl of Derby, then Lord Stanley, remarked the other day that co-operation was a "good thing," and he predicted "its suc-"cess." Than Lord Stanley, no man in England or America is more worthy of attention, and he praises co-operation because it is hum in nature that a man should like to feel that he is "a gainer by any extra industry he may put forth, and that he should clike to have some sense of proprietorship in the shop or mill in which he passes his "days." This is the whole question in a -The last exploit of the Caban insurgents to | nutshell; but Lord Stanley was evidently the Central Department of the island was to speaking not of the ordinary co-operative associations, but of what are called industrial partnerships. There are two distinct objects which the workingmen, whether common laborers or skilled mechanics, are striving to obtain. The one is protection, and the other is progress. The Trades Unions, in England at all events, give the working men ample prothe part of employers, and this can be had, and will be had, without recourse to measures of violence like those which brought down upon the Sheffield Sawgrinders the deserved condemnation of the public. Naturally and reasonably the workingman is a lover of fair play and equal rights. The true workingman will not consent to help in maining or killing his mates because they intended for their benefit. The black sheep may attempt to persuade the non-unio man by beating and wounding. The honest artisan will wait, knowing that self-interest must in time bring all the workmen who are worth having into what is purely a proteetive and defensive association. In England the Trades Unions have grown so rapidly in numbers and importance that a measure for their recognition as legal incorporations will undoubtedly receive Parliamentary sanction; and Lord Stanley, speaking in behalf of a conservatism which is far from being prepossessed in their favor, is content to recognise them as inevitable, and, on the whole, a satisfactory form of popular combination. The co-opérative movement represents what may be termed the aggressive side of modern labor, as opposed to Trades Unions -The British bark Strathspey, from San Fran-cisco, bound for Queenstown, with wheat, encountry, in its simplest shape, has not been strikingly successful. The co-operators have been able to obtain provisions, for instance, of full weight and good quality, at a fair market price; but the direct profits have not been large. Nor could any extension of the principle, in its present application, meet the great want of either employers or employed. The employers want to induce their workmen to take an active and a personal interest in their occupation. As it stands, the good wor'm m does his work faithfully, and receives his well-won wages. -A citizen of Lansing, Michigan, has been en-gaged in delivering to a paper manufacturing But he can do more than this. employers in a hundred ways, and this he will not do-it is not reasonable to expect it -unless a saving or a benefit to the employer is a saving or a benefit to him. The employer understands this argument, and, therefore, when co-operation for production takes the shape of an industrial partnership, it is tolerably certain to succeed.

In England, the industrial partnership has been tried. The experiment has been made in various branches of industry, under various conditions, but all maintaining the essential principle of giving the artisan a direct interest in the results of his labor, and furnishing has with a fresh inducement to make them productive. In some cases the movement was made by the employers; in others it originated with the employed; but in all, the experiment has proved satisfactory enough to justify its indefinite exten-Industrial partnerships will satisfy the im-

They claim the privilege of following their handiwork beyond the gates of the factory and of becoming identified with its progress. They claim that they and their employers are one, and ask that they be given an association as inseparable as their interests. This will not be denied them, and as years roll by capital, the or ganizer, and labor, the producer, may walk side by side in the smiling ways of industry and peace.

JOHN PLOUGHMAN'S TALK; OF Plain Advice for Plain People. By C. H. Spurgeon, New York: Sheldon & Co.

A man may win notoriety by a happy ac cident; he cannot win and keep distinction without baving something better in his gifts than the capricious bounty of Fortune. Of this truth Spurgeon affords an illustration; that he is an English celebrity is due to his having a good deal of brain, a good deal of zeal, and a good deal of industry. He would make a stir anywhere. A strong man never resting prevents stagnation in a community Besides, he has the gifts of a popular leader-heartiness, humor, courage. All these qualities John Plonghman's Talk reveals. It might be named Spurgeon's opinions about people whom he and all of us have met. It is a book of friendly chat and jovial banter and aphoristic wisdom-funny, homely good-natured-pleasant to read and profitable to ponder. While upon this subject, we may be allowed, in justice to Mr. Spurgeon to say that John Ploughman's Talk is not specimen of the author's pulpit perform ances, as a sensational story recently published would seem to indicate. Mr. Spurgeon is not accustomed to ring hells or siid down banisters, as a part of his public ministrations, but preaches to as orderly and serious a congregation as can be found in England. Oftentimes homely in illustra tion, he is uniformly earnest in the sacred This volume will serve to show what he could do if he should undertake to excite the risibles of a public audience.
